Product Profile Walk-in bathtub

American Standard recently introduced four new walk-in bathtub models, something that hospitals and nursing homes will welcome.

The door swings out of the way, providing ample space to manoeuvre when entering or leaving the tub. The chair-height seat is convenient for wheelchair transfers.

"All walk-in tubs in this series are also equipped with the American Standard Quick Drain system," reported Nunzio DiCesare, American Standard Canada brand manager. "Wait time for emptying a full tub is reduced to two minutes from the usual 10 minutes or more."

Safety features include full access to the built-in chair-height seat when the door is open; built-in Bathers and caregivers alike will appreciate the ease of entry to American Standard walk-in bathtubs with outward-opening doors.

armrests on each side when the door is closed; a sturdy grab bar facing the door and a textured floor for a firm footing.

The four available configurations are combo massage, whirlpool, airbath and soaker tubs. Options include a "barrier free" compliant slide-bar and hand-shower combination; a neck rest; acrylic extensions for custom installation; and a decorative tile flange.

All models are constructed of cast acrylic reinforced with fiberglass, and further strengthened by an embedded steel frame. Dimensions are 52 inches long, 30 wide and 37 high (132 x 76 x 94 cm). Colours are white or linen.
